DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-46 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Claim 1 recites a 'region of interest', which can be interpreted as either 2-D or 3-D, and no 3-D structure is claimed. Additionally there is no voxel assemblage structure such as a volume memory claimed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1-7, 13-27, 31, 33-46 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lin (U.S. 6,068,597).

Regarding claims 1, 3-4 & 21, Lin teaches various methods for identifying tumors using elastographic imaging (col. 1 lines 46-67; col. 2 lines 1-8), in which Doppler resonance response to the vibration of paired audio transducers (element 112) which yields strain displacement (col. 5 lines 30-33) which is a measurement related to strain, the transducer is an electronically steered (col. 4 line 42) phased array which therefore is steered to different angles to form a sector scan, the different levels of audio output power (col. 5 line 5) resulting in different levels of vibration compressibility over which echographic samples are taken for a region of interest (embedded tissue element 422), and processor compounds this data from different angles to form a measurement for a voxel (col. 4 lines 44-48), examiner construes pixels gathered for three-dimensional representation to be voxels by definition.

Regarding claim 2, Lin further teaches wherein the processor provides a strain extractor (col. 5 lines 39-42) and a combiner operating together to receive a set of echo signals and produce the compounded strain measurement (col. 1 lines 56-65).

Regarding claims 5-7, Lin also teaches that after allowing a predetermined amount of time for a resonance vibration to stabilize, the sequencer initiates acquisition of a spectral data point (col. 7 lines 35-38).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 8-12, 28-30, 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lin (U.S. 6,068,597) in view of Ueki et al. (U.S. 6,377,656 B1). Lin teaches all the limitations of claim limitations of claims 1-7 and 21-27 as described but does not specifically teach the varying weighting functions related to an estimate of Poisson's ratio. In the same field of endeavor, Ueki et al. teaches and imaging apparatus and method for manipulating weighting function of normal distribution (col. 14 lines 66-67 and col. 15 lines 1-7). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to have modified the apparatus and method as taught by Lin and to have incorporated the teachings of Ueki et al. since the weighting function is never restricted to that of normal distribution and manipulation would be advantageous.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

Reference Burcher et al. (U.S. 2004/0254460 A1) teaches a transducer array that may use spatial compounding ('different angles') for voxels in association with inverse or reverse deformation measurement to null out the effect of transducer deformation force.
